No Trouble Since

Mrs. Walker's Statement is Most Convincing Evidence.

When Mrs. Walker endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills she told of having received complete relief. Now Mrs. Walker tells how years have passed without any return of kidney trouble. Results that last are results that count. Norway people should gain by Mrs. Walker's experience.

Mrs. Persis A. Walker, Cottage St., Norway, says: "I felt badly and all symptoms pointed to kidney disorders. As my kidneys were weak, I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store. In a very short time they improved the condition of my kidneys very much."

Over two years later, Mrs. Walker said: "My system has remained free from kidney trouble since I used Doan's Kidney Pills."

MAY.

Oh, the charming month of May, Queen of the year, must pass away: A smile for the living—for the dead a tear—as we march along the rest of the year! Smiles as the sunshine, tears as the dew, In the great, grand army of the "brave and true."

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Bethel, Me., April 23, 1916.
Dear Editor and Girls and Boys—Why don't the girls and boys write for our nice paper when the Editor has kindly asked us?

I am going to school up to Bethel Hill, my teacher's name is Miss Florence Springer. I like her very much. For studies I am taking arithmetic, reading, spelling, history, geography, writing, singing, grammar and marching and air-ing the rooms.

It is a good place to go to school. The Middle Interval people say they don't want to send their children up there to school. They don't know what is best for them. Mama says it is the best place and I know it is myself.

Mr. P. J. Tibbets comes down after Ethel Capen, Kenneth Stanley, Rodney Bartlett and me. I am in the fifth grade. My teacher lives in Bethel. I will send you my Easter piece that I learned at home:

The Song of the Bells.
I sat last night at my window,
As the solemn church-bells rang,
And I listened with many a heart throbbing
To the musical song they sang:
To the beautiful singing and swelling,
To the tales of life they were telling,
The story of Christ and His dwelling
On earth for the glory of men.

And my heart was filled with the story
Of Christ, who for men had died;
As I listened with faint heart swelling,
To the bells of the Easter-tide.
And wondered if souls in their madness,
Could list to this story of gladness,
And cast away pain and all sadness,
In the peace of the Easter-tide.

O, hearts that are weary of sinning,
And hearts that are weary of life!
Would you list to the bells and their music,
Your lives would be free from strife.
Your souls with their peace would be thrilling,
And the pain and bitter grief stilling,
With the rapture and joy of the singing,
Of the musical Easter bells!

O, beautiful song of the Easter!
There must be a God in it;
A power supreme that is loving,
And I cast all my doubts away.
Let men all their hearts be founding,
Their faith with philosophy breaking,
I hold to a heart that is aching,
The peace of a God is supreme.

O, beautiful bells of the Easter!
Glad may your chiming be:
May you bring all hearts that are breaking,
The peace you have brought to me,
May your musical singing and swelling,
To the souls that are weary of telling,
The story of Christ, and His dwelling
On earth for the glory of men.

Virgil Herrick has a new horse.
Claude Haskell is about to enlarge his house by building a piece onto the back of it.

Many friends of Grant Allison are glad to see him back again after a two months' visit with relatives in Worcester, Mass.

Clarence Austin now owns the gray horse, Hector, formerly owned by Perley Russell.

Chas. Merrill and sons, who purchased hay of the French Bros, have been hauling some of it home this week.

Clarence Austin is building a new shed.

A goodly number from this vicinity attended the all day meeting of the Norway Grange last Saturday. There was a large attendance and a fine program.

KEZAR FALLS.
Housecleaning, papering, painting and gardening is the order of the day and the lazy man has little need to study the ways of the ant as he can occupy himself more profitably at home.

The rain which fell so copiously, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, has made an amazing change in the vegetation. The grass on the well kept lawns has become a carpet of vivid green, buds are swelling upon the trees, tulips and narcissus have thrust their green blades up into the light; pussy willows and Mayflowers lead the run and the voice of the robin is heard in the land.

Mrs. Charles Pendexter, who had made her home since her husband's death with her two daughters, Mrs. Frank Hubbard and Maria Pendexter, passed away at the noon hour of April 21st. She had been sick for ten years, the result of a shock and during her long sickness, received the tenderest love and care from her daughters and son-in-law. She was always most appreciative of their loving ministrations and was never heard to murmur at her lot. Services attended by Rev. Cymbrid Hughes, were held at her home on the afternoon of April 25th. There was a wealth of beautiful flowers. Interment was in Cornish Riverside cemetery, where she rests beside her husband, Charles Pendexter, who preceded her many years ago.

Owing to the inclement weather, East-er Sunday, the children's concert has been postponed until next Sunday evening.

To Chase the Chill— Burn Socony Kerosene

THERE'S nothing like a good oil heater for warming up chilly places and helping out the regular heating system in extra cold weather.

An efficient oil heater (we recommend the Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater) will give ten hours of clear, odorless heat on a gallon of kerosene. It will not smoke and it will not give off odor, so long as you are careful to fill it with reliable fuel.

The best way to make sure of always getting safe, clean, dependable fuel is to buy it by name. Say "Socony" (So-CO-ny) to the grocer's boy when he comes to take your oil can. Socony Kerosene Oil is the name of the Standard Oil Company of New York's best kerosene. It is a quality product—so much better than ordinary kerosene that it is decidedly worth asking for.

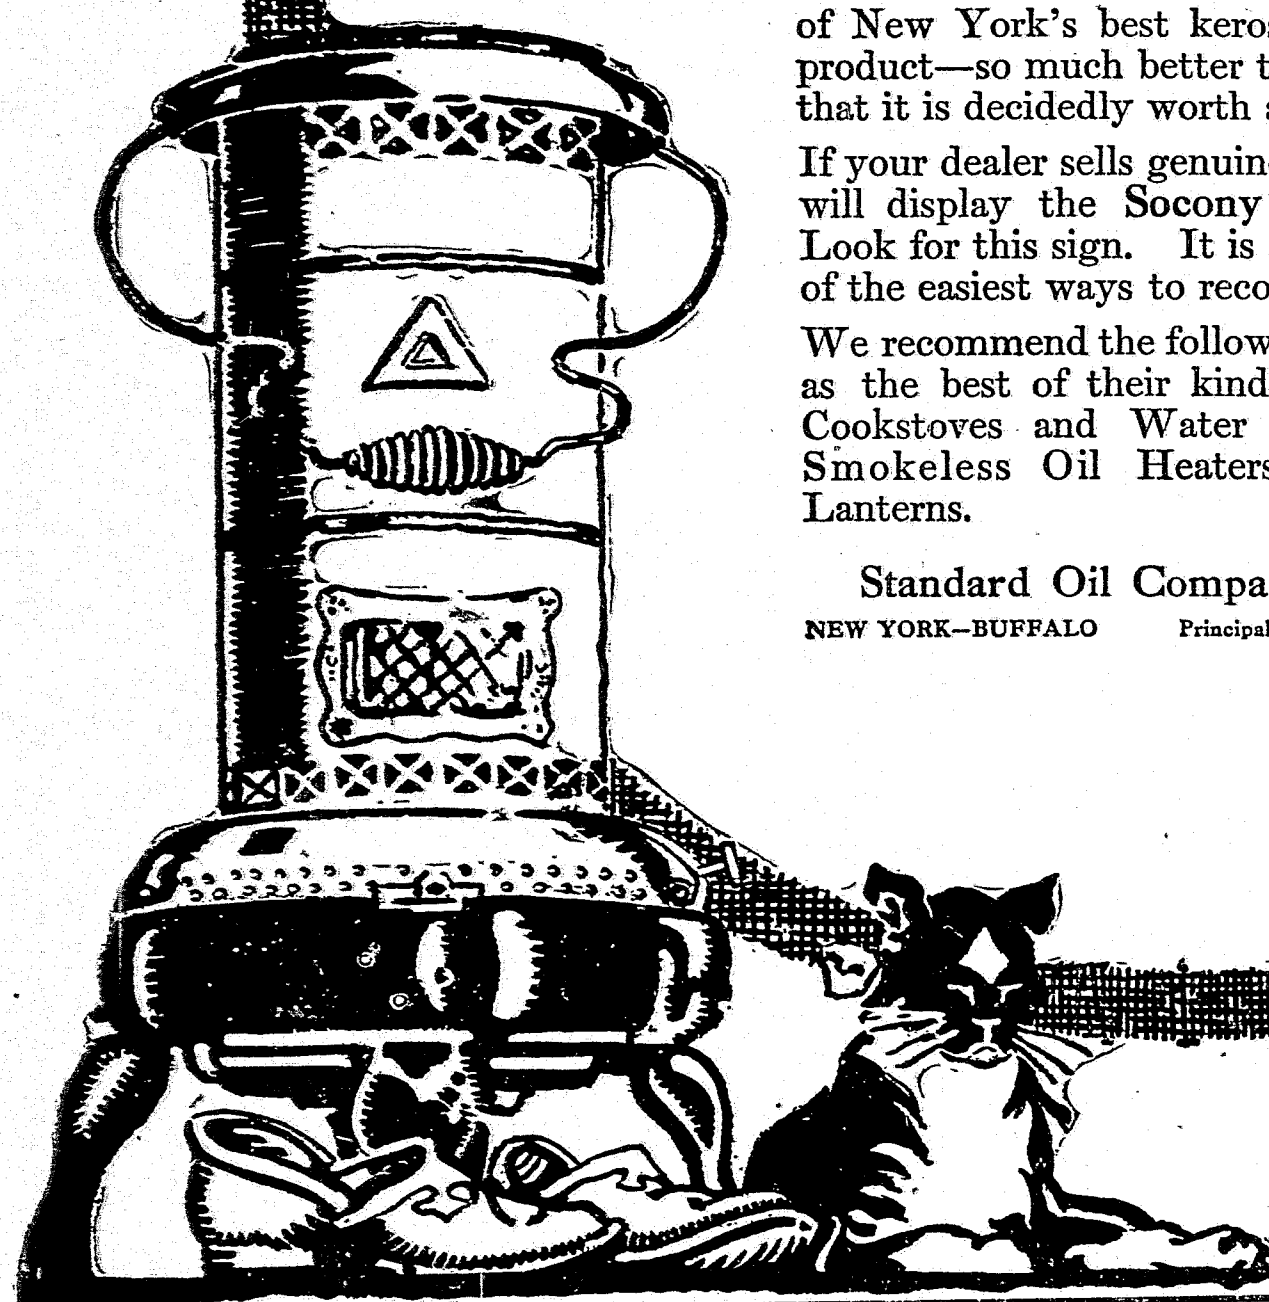

If your dealer sells genuine Socony Kerosene he will display the Socony sign in his window. Look for this sign. It is a quality sign and one of the easiest ways to recognize a reliable dealer.

We recommend the following oil burning devices as the best of their kind: New Perfection Oil Cookstoves and Water Heaters, Perfection Smokeless Oil Heaters, Rayo Lamps and Lanterns.

GENERAL NEAL DOW.

The prohibitory law made provision through municipal agents for the sale of liquors for medicinal and mechanical purposes. The agency system was at the time regarded as a sort of safety-valve to the policy of Prohibition, as in providing for the legitimate supply for legitimate demands for liquor it prevented the arraying against the law of an element that might otherwise be hostile to it. For this reason it was especially obnoxious to the liquor interests. The board of mayor and aldermen authorized the use of a shop owned by the city in the basement of the City Hall, and appointed a committee, of which the mayor was chairman, to arrange for the establishment of a city agency for the sale of spirituous liquors, wine, etc., for medicinal and mechanical purposes, under the provisions of the law. In pursuance of this order the committee contracted with the selling agent of a New York Liquor house, in the name and on account of the city and for the city agency, for a quantity of liquors which arrived in Portland marked "Portland Agency, Portland, Maine," accompanied by Bills Of lading similarly made out. The liquors were billed to the "Portland Agency, Portland, Maine," and on their arrival were immediately carried to the basement of the City Hall, where the City Agent previously elected. Up to that time the authorities had not received an intimation that any trouble was to follow. Subsequently, it was learned that arrangements for a disturbance were commenced immediately after the first order establishing the agency, nearly a month prior to this date.

On the morning of the 2d of June, our citizens were confronted with the following which was circulated broadcast through the city:

Attention, City Marshall! While the city authorities are busy searching private houses for denijohns and jugs of liquor, it is, perhaps not strange that they should overlook wholesale importations into the city of what are probably impure liquors intended for sale. We are credibly informed that $1,600 worth of liquors have recently been purchased by a citizen of Portland and brought into the city in violation of law, and are still kept here illegally. Why doesn't the marshal seize and destroy it? The mayor of the city has no more right to deal in liquors without authority than any other citizen. Where are our vigilante police, who are knowing to the above facts and who think it their duty to move about in search of the poor man's cider, and push their search into private houses, contrary to every principle of just law? Why are they so negligent of the weightier matters and so eager for the mint and cumin? We call upon them by virtue of Neal Dow's law to seize Neal Dow's liquors and pour them into the street. The old maxim reads: "Fiat justitia ruat cælum," which means "Let the law which Neal Dow has prepared for other backs be applied to his own when he deserves it."

Naturally all in the city opposed to Prohibition or to Neal Dow were aroused by that publication. The excitement was increased by the talk such utterances were calculated to incite. In the afternoon, three citizens, one of whom was on ex-distiller, whose business had been suppressed by the Maine Law—or by Neal Dow, as was the custom then to say—and the other two violent personal and political enemies of the mayor, made complaint under oath that they had reason to believe and did believe that intoxicating liquors were kept by Neal Dow in the middle cellar under the building commonly known as the City Hall, and that said liquors were intended for sale in the city in violation of law. These complainants were accompanied to the court rooms by a large number of persons known to be violently opposed to the Maine Law and the warrant, and though all the circumstances were such as to compel the judge to believe that the complainants were swearing falsely and that the complaint was made in pursuance of a plan to incite trouble, he had no option but to issue the warrant. Thereupon the complainants insisted that the judge should ignore the officer whose special duty it was to serve such warrants, and commit it to the hands of a constable whom they had brought with them to the court room. This, however, the judge refused to do.

In the course of an hour and a half after receiving the warrant the officer went to the place described, to wit, the City Agency. There to his surprise he found three truckmen who told him they had come to haul the liquors away. Quite a number of people also were collected there, who manifested an unusual interest in the proceedings. Entering the premises, the officer found the liquors marked as already described, and also some other seized liquors, that being the usual place for depositing such. Being in doubt whether he should seize them, he called for the invoice. This was produced by the City Agent, and was found to correspond with the marks upon the packages. He then left the building to consult the City Marshall and County Attorney. His departure was the occasion for loud complaints from the crowd that no seizure had been made, accompanied with threats that they would take care of it in the evening. This violent talk was renewed when the officer returned shortly with the City Marshall to seize the liquors. Having seized them, he took an account of them, and left them where they were, in the building owned by the City.

The warrant had now been duly executed. The processes of the Maine Law had been applied quietly and in due form by the proper officials, without trouble or disturbance of any kind. The threats and bluster that had been made by the crowd sent there to make trouble, were caused by the refusal of the officers to do more than duty required of them, which refusal interfered with the designs of the fomenters of the subsequent riot. Nothing now remained for the officer but to make his return as provided by law, that all questions involved might be passed upon by the court, as was subsequently in due time done. That, however, was not what the complainants, who had sworn out the warrant, and those for whom they were acting, desired. Their purpose may be fairly inferred from what followed.

A crowd for the main part orderly, gathered around the agency in the afternoon, in the evident expectation that the liquors to be seized would be removed from the building by the constable selected by the complainants to make the seizure. What that crowd would have done in that event is conjectural. What was done, under changed conditions, may be briefly described.

The comparatively orderly gathering of the afternoon was by evening largely increased in number and became a desperate mob intent upon unlawful and riotous action. It threatened property and life. The small undisciplined ununiformed police force at the disposal of the authorities proved utterly inadequate to cope with it. Warnings were answered with insults; attempts to disperse the crowd aroused only excitement and threats; the ringleaders arrested were rescued by their fellow-rioters, and finally the Marshal reported to the mayor his inability to maintain the peace with the force under his command.

The municipal authorities in the emergency acted without haste or excitement, under the competent legal advice of the city solicitor, Gen. Samuel Fessenden. After the civil force had proved unequal to disperse the mob and the police were in imminent danger, two military companies were called upon to act as an armed police force. There was delay in the response, for want of proper arms and ammunition, the captain of one of the companies refusing to expose his men to the mob unless they were properly armed and equipped. This only encouraged the rioters.

Meanwhile the police force, by the use of revolvers, was maintaining its position inside the building into which the mob was endeavoring to force its way. Finally after the sheriff of the county, as well as the mayor, had read the riot act, and the mayor had warned the rioters to disperse, and one military company, which had accompanied the mayor and two aldermen into the presence of the mob, had been reduced by wounds from stones and other missiles, and the retirement of those who left the ranks to carry off their wounded comrades, to eight men, a second military company arrived upon the scene, and after a few volleys of four shots each cowed the mob, which was afterwards dispersed at the point of the bayonet. One rioter was killed and three or four wounded, whether by the police or the military it was never judicially ascertained.

What would have followed if the mob had got access to the liquors after tramping down the constabulary authorities may also be left to conjecture. It is enough here to say that the majesty of the law was sustained, not the Maine Law, be it remembered; the enforcement of that statute as we have seen, was not involved in the riot. There would have been no disturbance of any kind had the complainants and those for whom they acted been content with the orderly enforcement of the statute under which they had sworn out the warrant.

The struggle of the temperance people to obtain a law that would check or prohibit the liquor traffic was continued with increasing vigor for ten or twelve years. In 1846, they were successful in having a license law passed by the Legislature, but it proved to be only a makeshift and was altogether unsatisfactory because of the laxity of officials in enforcing it and the inadequate penalties prescribed for violators. The law was not constructed on a proper foundation. Gen. Dow during all these years was working with many associates all over the State, making a sentiment among the people in favor of prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating liquors. He traveled about the State principally in the four Western counties, accompanied by several co-workers, holding meetings in all the principal villages, generally traveling with his own team, sending dates ahead for a week or more appointing meetings. Sometimes these meetings were made holidays and occasions for picnics. Temperance literature was distributed in liberal quantities at all times and places.

The license became practically a dead law. But General Dow and his co-workers believed they were right and kept vigorously at the work until a majority of the people were educated to a point when by their votes, elected a legislature that enacted in the Maine Prohibition Law.

Gen. Dow was a man of great strength of character and determination, and confidence in himself—this quality is sometimes called self conceit.

Gen. Dow's beliefs were as radical on the question of slavery as they were on that of temperance.

I will conclude this paper by expressing the hope that the time is not far distant when the people of Minneapolis and Minnesota, will arise in their might and throw off the fetters which bind them and cease to be accessories to the crime which is upheld by them as the result of the license laws.

You know what gasoline costs. You know too, what kerosene costs. Take the difference—multiply it by the number of gallons of fuel an engine will consume in five years, figuring one pint of fuel per horse power per hour. At what price must you buy a gasoline engine to make it cost you as little as a Mogul does? Could you afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift? See the dealer about this. He has the figures all worked out for you on all sizes of Mogul engines from 1 to 50 H. P.

THE GREATEST HEALTH INSURANCE IN THE WORLD

T. P. Taylor, Prominent Louisville Druggist, Makes Interesting Statement

T. P. TAYLOR

"The greatest health insurance in the world is the simplest," he said. "I never could quite understand why people are so negligent in the use of the simplest of all preventives of illness. It's all a matter of keeping the bowels open. The man who carries a little box of Rexall Orderlies has got a good health policy in his pocket. I believe they are the best laxative ever prepared, and their pleasant taste appeals to men, women and children alike."

We have the exclusive selling rights for this great laxative.

LUMBERMEN

These big, brawny men of the woods know the worth of a strong arm, a steady hand and a true eye. They have been at it for years, long as they can eat well and sleep well, they can do a man's work.

But all lumbermen know that a bad stomach or a sick headache can put the strongest of them out of business. Men in the woods cannot be fussy about their food, and too much of the same kind, day after day, is apt to bring on a stomach attack, cause biliousness or a splitting headache.

"L. F. Atwood's Medicine is worth its weight in gold to men in the lumber camps. An old-fashioned, simple remedy for the stomach, liver and bowels that quickly puts these organs in good order and keeps them so. Tested by use, for over sixty years."

Coming Events.

April 29—Leap Year Ball and Concert, Bolster's Mills.

Between Bites.

The following "Bites" are from the new edition (Putnam's) of Charles Bradford's "The Determined Angler."

Ideal Angling Time.—The last two weeks in June—what lovelier period for brook trout fishing in the rich flower-lined mountain streams? When does the wild shrub smell sweeter than now, the wind blow more balmy, the songbirds trill sweeter, and the spotted trout bite better?

Landing The Trout.—The proper time to spend in landing a fish all depends upon the condition of your fishing ground. Lead your prize away from obstructions, keep the line taut, and do not nervously hurry the play. Take your time.

The Silver Hook.—"Tis a good deal of fun in thinking you are going to have it," Walton says the Angler's anticipation of fishing is as great a joy as the realization of it.

The Fishless Fisherman.—"You took a day off from your work and went fishing? Have any luck?" "Certainly. A day off is luck enough."

Angling and Mathematics.—"Angling may be said to be so much like the Mathematics, that it can never be fully learnt; at least not so fully, but there will still be more new experiments left for the trial of other men than succeed us."

Ancient Angling.—One of the most ancient literary works on fishing, perhaps the most ancient of all really known volumes on the subject, is Hauleutics of Oppian, the work of a Greek poet, A. D. 138, from which many articles on fishing and angling, thought to be more modern, have been taken. Athenaeus tells us that several writers wrote treatises or poems on fishing centuries before the Christian era.

WORK OF THE D. A. R.

By Frederic J. Hastin.

The 25th annual congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held in Continental Hall, Washington, D. C., has just adjourned. The Daughters, of whom there are now a quarter of a million, have returned to their various communities with new suggestions and ideas for their local activities in "cherishing, maintaining and extending institutions of America, and fostering true patriotism and love of country."

While much publicity has been given the genealogical research work of the organization, few people are aware of the practical activities of the society. In the present preparedness campaign alone, the D. A. R. is a considerable factor, standing ready to provide a generous supply of nurses, hospital equipment and other aid within its scope and influence.

During the Spanish-American war the organization was still in its infancy. Nevertheless, it contributed a thousand nurses and over 30,000 hospital garments; spent $200,000 in purchasing delicacies for sick soldiers and looking after their families; in addition to which it presented a steam launch to the hospital ship, Missouri, to be used in transporting sick soldiers to and from the vessel. Two years ago, when war with Mexico appeared inevitable, the society immediately notified the President of its desire to do its share of patriotic service. Now that war is again imminent, the same offer of assistance is forthcoming.

The promulgation of patriotism and the perpetuation of history are the two great motives of the organization. It spends annually many thousands of dollars in improving civic conditions in all parts of the country. Patriotic societies are encouraged among children, who are taught to revere the flag and honor the great patriots of American history. One of the junior societies, "Children of the Revolution," is composed of youngsters whose heredity makes them eligible for membership in the D. A. R. or Sons of the Revolution when they become 21.

Another society, known as "Children of the Republic," was organized especially for immigrant children who are properly aided by the nobility and greatness of Uncle Sam and are enthusiastic in their pledges of allegiance to the flag. No other organization has done so much to eliminate the hyphen among immigrants in this country. The D. A. R. has established citizenship classes in the largest immigrant communities, and has arranged for lectures in various languages on American citizenship and history. The Connecticut chapters of the society have published an immigrants' guide in four different languages, including Italian, Polish and Yiddish. This guide is a sort of United States almanac, giving the laws and institutions of the country; the value of lands available for settlement; the locations of foreign settlements in various States; the approximate cost of staking land claims and the buying or leasing of farms; naturalizing laws, marriage laws, and all other laws likely to affect the immigrant; and also the addresses of the consuls representing each nation in America. Printed for free distribution in Connecticut, this guide is now available in all the larger cities.

The American College for Immigrants at Springfield, Mass., is also under the patronage of the D. A. R. chapters of that State. Seventeen different nationalities attend this college, which gives academic and literary courses and a special course in American citizenship. In helping the mountain schools of the southern States, the organization spends annually $50,000. Last year the Arkansas chapters of the organization gave nine scholarships in the Helen Dunlap school of Winslow, Ark., and a little over $200 for clothing. In this school the half of nine months of board and instruction is only $50, so that many girls are able to work their way through. Missouri chapters pay ten cents per capita toward the maintenance of scholarships in the Mountain School of the Ozarks in southern Missouri; in North Carolina the Daughters built and maintain a mountain school, and the South Carolina members have an industrial school for mountain pupils. The New York chapters last year contributed over $20,000 for educational and philanthropic work.

There are still more than a million people in the mountain districts of the southern States who can not read or write, many of whom are Americans of the oldest and purest English stock. Of the thirteen million foreign-born residents in the United States, over two and a half million adults cannot speak English and are not receiving any instruction. Half of this number cannot read or write in any language at all. The D. A. R. is now making plans to eradicate as much of this illiteracy as possible.

A movement in which all the chapters of the organization are interested is the marking of old military roads and historic trails. The Daniel Boone Trail, the Pioneer Trail or "Mormon Trail," the Santa Fe Trail and the King's Highway have all been marked with bronze tablets and monuments by the Daughters of the various States through which they pass. Moreover, efforts have been made to perpetuate the history of every significant occurrence during the Revolutionary War by monuments of one kind and another.

The chapters of each State are supposed to investigate the history of their individual communities, and honor the memory of many men who have played a conspicuous part in the progress of the nation. Thus the Maryland chapters erected a bronze tablet to Francis Scott Key at Fort Mifflin; the Illinois chapters persuaded the State Legislature to buy Fort Massac, where they erected a monument to George Rogers Clark, and the District of Columbia Daughters were instrumental in bringing the remains of John Paul Jones to America, and having the remains of Major L'Enfant interred in the National Cemetery at Arlington.

Continental Hall, the National home of the D. A. R. here, was built by the organization and is the only building devoted to the public welfare not subsidized by Government appropriations. It is a white marble building with a pillared portico, facing a wide expanse of park and situated between the Pan American building and the National Congress Art Gallery. Among other things, it contains a valuable reference library of American history, a museum of historical relics and a large assembly hall, used for patriotic and public gatherings. The hall is already famous as the scene of the first female indignation meeting of American history, for here met the woman suffragists from all over the country on the third of March, 1912, and made their appeal to Congress to avenge the disaster to their parade.

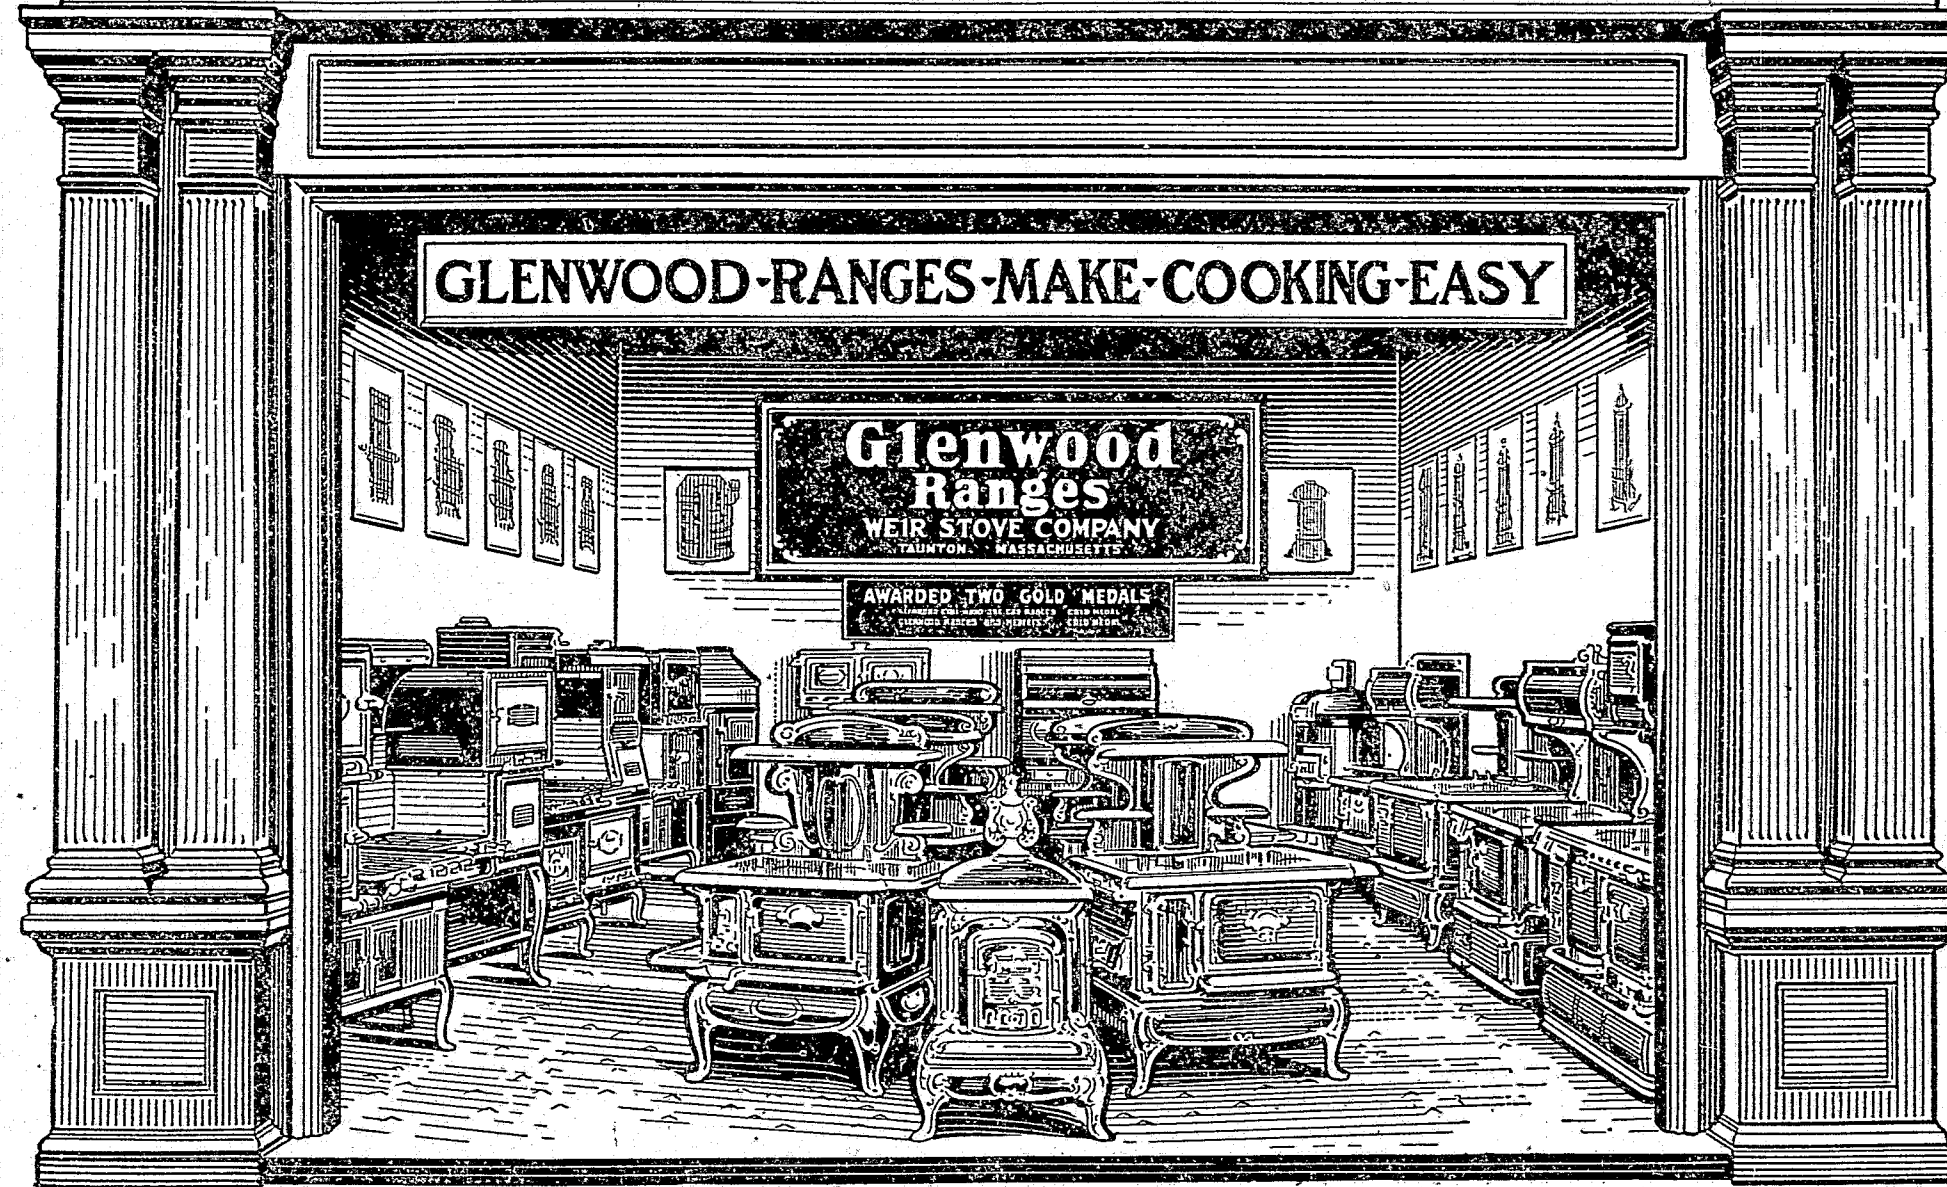

The sleeveless nightgown is a new idea which is meeting with success.

This building is also the home of the D. A. R. Magazine, published monthly by the organization, containing many excellent articles concerning American history and genealogical records. The society has traced the history of American music and even American cooking, discovering many ancient recipes that were fashionable among the original American aristocrats. One, translated from the Dutch by Mrs. French Chadwick, wife of Rear Admiral Chadwick, is for "Taart Van Bysters," and says: "Take oysters from the shell with the liquor; put these on the under crust of the pie, with butter, pepper, nutmeg and cracker crumbs over them. Spread over this capers and thin slices of lemon. Squeeze the juice of one orange over the whole before putting on the upper crust."

While the D. A. R. has encountered a certain amount of popular ridicule owing to its great respect for conspicuous ancestry, from this it may be seen that the organization is doing actual work for the progress of the people of the Nation. Besides a small society, I had the satisfaction of knowing how comfortable they were in their home-made blankets, and it did me good every time I went to the "farm" and drove into the old barn, to see them chewing their cud and looking so warm and contented.

I wish everybody had the same great love for animals. If they had there would be far less suffering among those now so often neglected but patient, faithful creatures who cannot speak for themselves.

BLANKET COWS.

We used to own a summer home farm. We lived there eight months in the year and left a caretaker in charge of the stock the remaining four months. Our "farm" was located upon a hill, which, in winter, was very bleak and exposed, the barn large and cold.

I used to go to the "farm" from our city home once a week to look after the comfort of my farm animals. One very cold morning as I drove into the barn the first thing that attracted my attention was that all the animals were bunched up and shivering. I said to myself at once, "Why cannot cows be blanketed as well as horses? I will blanket mine, at least!" I broached the subject to some of my friends. They laughed at me and exclaimed, "Who ever heard of cows being blanketed?" The ridicule, however, did not deter me. I measured the cows and heifers, and, straightway, next day, went into Boston to see what I could find for blankets for cows. The search was fruitless, as everyone had told me it would be. I was not discouraged. Instead, I bought burlap and flannel, and cut, fitted and made blankets for my cattle. Ever after that, it mattered not how cold the weather, I had the satisfaction of knowing how comfortable they were in their home-made blankets, and it did me good every time I went to the "farm" and drove into the old barn, to see them chewing their cud and looking so warm and contented.

I wish everybody had the same great love for animals. If they had there would be far less suffering among those now so often neglected but patient, faithful creatures who cannot speak for themselves.

Easter Services.

The Easter concert at the Congregational church Sunday evening being the only one in town, received generous patronage. The program consisted of songs by the choir and also by some of the classes; vocal solos by Miss Freda Sanford, Master Harold Taylor, little Miss Verna Coolidge; exercises by several of the Sunday school classes; recitations by Misses Grace Vandenberg, Alberta Stearns, Elizabeth Mason, Dorothy Hascum and Masters Adelman Stearns and Gerard Eames. The church decorations consisted of potted plants and cut flowers and Easter lilies. A most interesting sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Curtis, at the morning service. After inspiring music by a large choir with vocal solo by Miss Freda Sanford, and a delightful trio by Mr. Teale, cello, Wm. Bingham, violin and Miss Ruth Herriek at the organ, communion was observed and six were received into church membership, three by baptism and three by letter.

At the Universalist church, the services of the day began at 6:45 with the annual Easter sunrise meeting, Miss Ruth Ashby, leader. At the morning service there was special music by the choir and vocal solos by Milan Chapin and Miss Mona Martyn. An able sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Little, was followed by communion and the reception of a mother and young daughter into membership. Many of the people at Easter lilies were tastefully arranged by a competent committee.

Iona Tibbetts was in Norway, Saturday, and Mrs. Frank Kendall spent the day in Lewiston.

The Gould Academy boys defeated Mechanic Falls high school nine, seven to two.

F. L. Edwards and family attended the wedding of a niece at Milan, N. H., Saturday evening.

Alice Kimball, who entered Simmons college at Boston at the beginning of the school year, came to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Kimball, Friday. Miss Kimball has been ill in a hospital for several months and it is hoped she will be able to resume her studies for the second year as she is much improved in health.

Mrs. Harry Jordan, who has been in a Portland hospital for surgical treatment, has returned home and occupied by Levi Brown and family, has been sold to parties who will soon occupy it.

Edward Robertson of Bethel, who has been employed for several years by the G. B. R. and has resided in Portland, is to return to Bethel and will occupy their house on Paradise road. This change is made on account of the ill health of Mrs. Robertson. Mr. Robertson will continue his work.

F. L. Edwards and a crew of men are driving his pulp wood out of Alder river.

Mrs. Fred Wood is ill.

Mrs. Mary Capen is visiting relatives in Portland.

Harriet Tenselson of Rumford was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carter to attend the Tinker concert and dance given Monday evening. A large company enjoyed the dance with delightful music till a late hour. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Universalist church.

A dance will be enjoyed at grange hall, Saturday evening, April 29.

There was a generous offering for missionary purposes by the Sunday school and the special collection for the Maine Missionary society at the Congregational church. Enough was received to liquidate its share of the floating debt of the society.

George Spinney is very ill at the present time. Mrs. H. M. Kendall from Newry was at Fred Mundt's, assisting in caring for him, last week.

Gwendolyn Stearns was home from Mechanic Falls over Sunday.

E. W. Rolfe from Albany repaired Mr. Tyler's chimney, Tuesday.

Mid-term examinations at Gould Academy, Thursday and Friday.

Iona Tibbetts was in Norway, Saturday; Mrs. Wm. Lowe, Friday; Mrs. Geo. Harlow, Monday.

Property tax rate, .0215 on the dollar. Ivan Arno has returned from Pinehurst, N. C. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richardson also returned, Tuesday.

H. S. Pushard went to Rumford, Monday, to assume his duties as manager of Fernald's Drug Store.

Alice Kimball has returned from the Mattapan Hospital, where she has been under treatment.

Mrs. Harry Jordan, who submitted to a surgical operation at the Maine General Hospital, Portland, returned home, Friday, and her many friends are pleased to hear of her improvement.

Bethel is to "get busy" next month entertaining conventions, with the Oxford County Teachers' Convention on May 11 and 12; the Oxford County W. G. T. U. Convention on May 23 and 24; and the Library Institute on May 25 and 26.

Earl Williamson has returned after spending a few weeks in Boston.

Ossian Stanley received $355 for a pair of six-year-old oxen.

BRYANT'S POND

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gammon are keeping house for Robert Rumpfs and wife while they are spending a week in Boston visiting his brother Richard. Mr. Lovejoy there with Mr. Gammon to do the chores.

The people from far and near have enjoyed catching smelts. They are very large this spring. Now that the ice is breaking up in the lake, the people who like to go fishing are getting excited. We expect to hear of some wonderful fishing being done.

Easter Sunday was a very rainy day, but there was quite a good attendance in the morning; also at the Easter concert in the evening, which was much enjoyed. The church was very profitably decorated with potted plants and ferns, and many hot-house flowers, a gift from one of our summer friends, who spends about 7 months with us. The flowers were carried to the sick and shut-in ones. We know they enjoyed them.

Horace Berry is confined to his bed with heart trouble. He has to have someone care for him both day and night.

Ben Billings has bought the Gibbs Wyman place, so called, where Mr. McDaniel lived.

Mrs. Nellie B. Dudley of "Dudley Cottage" came home from Lynn, last week, where she has visited for about seven weeks.

Fred G. Davis from Buckfield moved into the Pelt rent, last Tuesday, where Edwin Howe recently vacated.

Tuesday afternoon a few of the grange Sisters met at Mrs. Robert Crockett's to sit together and tack a comforter for Mrs. Linda Yates, who was lately burned out. A social time, and knowing it is better to give than to receive, with a treat from Mrs. Crockett of two kinds of cake, custard pie and cocoa, made it a very enjoyable afternoon for those present.

What the Doctor Knows

KIDNEYS MUST BE RIGHT TO INSURE HEALTH.

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot readily be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's Disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, causes nearly ten thousand deaths in one year, in the State of New York alone. Therefore, it is particularly necessary to pay more attention to the health of these important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation, in most cases, is soon realized, according to sworn statements and verified testimony of those who have used the remedy.

When your kidneys require attention, get Swamp-Root at once from any pharmacy. It is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c. and $1.00. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention the Norway Weekly Oxford Co. Advertiser.

PEPSIN AND IRON—AND SARSAPARILLA

Finest Course of Spring Medicine.

Physicians and pharmacists have long known the desirability of combining iron—a superlative tonic—in a blood-purifying, building-up medicine.

The combination of the iron with Hood's Sarsaparilla has now been secured through the happy thought of prescribing Pepsin Pills to be taken in connection with the Sarsaparilla—one before eating, the other after.

In this way the two medicines work harmoniously and beneficially, each supplementing the other and giving a four-fold result in blood-cleansing and up-building.

Pepsin Pills also include pepsin besides iron,—note the name, Pepsin Pills,—and other tonics.

What better course of medicine can you imagine for Spring? You get blood-purifying, appetite-giving qualities in Hood's Sarsaparilla and great tonic properties in Pepsin Pills.

Buy these medicines today.

Investment and Maintenance

TWO FEATURES OF

OAKLAND CARS

Cost Little to Run

Low running expense is today as big a feature as low cost price in motor cars. Ten years ago only high priced motor cars were sold and those only to persons of wealth who could afford to pay a high operating expense bill. Today OAKLANDS are selling to hundreds who have only a modest income.

Fortunately, along with a reduction in the initial cost of motor cars came a reduction in operating expense. The average man, who buys an automobile today, purchases a middle priced motor car and in selecting it takes particular note of the operating expense. The gasoline mileage, the wear on tires and the general upkeep are vital to him because he hasn't unlimited means to use in maintaining a car.

OAKLAND motor cars have a special appeal from the standpoint of economy. Compared to their power, the operating cost is REMARKABLY low. Very unusual gasoline mileage has been made by the six cylinder car. Some owners have made as high as 25 miles on a gallon.

In general upkeep expense the economy feature of OAKLAND motor cars also is MOST NOTICEABLE. The high grade materials used in the construction and the care with which the cars are built eliminate the small and annoying troubles that many motorists have.

Style and appearance, also quality in OAKLAND cars—are best for the price.

It was reported Ernest Walker was to resign as head master at Fryeburg Academy at the close of the year, but it is a mistake we learn.

Randolph Howe is visiting R. S. Howe.

Easter was celebrated in the churches of Fryeburg with inspiring music and bright blossoms, and even though the skies were overcast and the rain fell heavily all day, good congregations attended the various services.

At the Church of the New Jerusalem the floral decorations consisted of cut flowers, Easter lilies, narcissuses, roses, jonquils, a few foliage plants and ferns, which were intermingled with branches of pussy willow. These were arranged with fine taste by Mrs. W. and Miss H. A. Pike and Mrs. L. Weeks, about the pulpit, communion table and in the alcove near the pulpit.

The pastor, Rev. B. Stone, preached a very suggestive discourse from the text given in "The Path of Life." The Introit hymn, "We Welcome, O Morning," written by Fortunate in the last century, the various responses and the Easter hymns were well rendered by a large choir of female voices, with Mrs. Z. O. Wentworth and H. A. Hurd of North Fryeburg as organists. The special vocal selections, with Mr. Hurd as accompanist, were very pleasing.

"Gloria to God," (Lane) by Mrs. Curtis Wiley and a duet, "The Saviour Liveth" (Wilson), by Mrs. J. Curtis Wiley and Mrs. Z. O. Wentworth, with a violin obligato by Ethel Andrews. The instrumental selections by Mr. Hurd were "An Andante movement" and "March from Haydn's First Mass. The Holy Supper was celebrated at 3 o'clock, p. m., and a fine children's vespers service given entirely by the pupils of the Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. E. Hastings, Mrs. Z. O. Wentworth and Mrs. W. B. Post, was held at 4 o'clock, p. m.

At the Congregational church, the floral decorations consisted of Easter lilies, carnation pinks, many ferns and palms, some foliage plants and also plants in bloom. The church was beautifully arranged by Clara Page, Abbie Beal and Rachel Weston. The music was very pleasing and was well rendered by a large choir of female voices, under the direction of Mrs. F. R. Fife, director, and Mrs. A. M. Abbott, organist. The special selection consisted of two Easter carols and the anthem, "The Saviour Liveth." Mrs. Charlotte Lovell and Mrs. F. R. Fife sang Easter solos. Rev. S. T. Achambach, the pastor, preached a discourse filled with cheering Easter messages. At the close of the morning worship, there was a church service, and a reception of new members. A number of nine boys scouts were among the united and there were three by letter and three others by profession.

At 4 o'clock p. m., a vespers service was given by the children of the Sunday school, and the choir sang the program was given, which included solos by Mrs. F. R. Fife, Frederica Fife and Ruth Shaw.

After the vespers services in both churches the flowers were all sent to the day for the invalids and people unable to attend the services.

GREENWOOD

Greenwood City News. F. J. Cole has recently been appointed road commissioner by the board of selectmen, for the lower half of the town.

The drying up of the mud has brought on the autos. F. J. Cole has purchased a new Ford.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the hall, Saturday, April 22, by friends and relatives. It was Sylvester Cole's 67th birthday. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Entertainment was furnished in the way of original songs and poems and games. Following is a poem by Mrs. A. S. Cummings:

Birthday Ode.

One April morning so bright and fair, Threescore and seven years ago, Mid Greenwood's pleasant hills and dales, A tiny baby boy was born.

Three boyish voices greeted him, And gazed with beaming eyes to see The tiny form, the helpless hands, So white and tender, weak and wee.

Others there came to the little home, Till the house was filled to the very brim, But some stayed only a little while, Then passed beyond to the church-yard dim.

So passed the boyhood days away, Gliding so swiftly and all too soon, Until the hours of the morning passed, And morning had risen into noon.

A stalwart youth we see him next, With thoughtful brow and steady eye, Pondering how best to make life's voyage, What duties in the future lie.

Early he took as his faithful guide, The Bible and the words of his o'er, Till he knew God's Word from beginning to end.

And still he hungered for more and more, At length while conning its pages o'er, He chanced to read that message sweet, 'Tis good to be alone.

So he took to himself his good helpmeet, The changing years brought shadow and shade, But we need the shadow to know the joy, For joy like gold will only wait.

When mixed with metal to form alloy, Fair daughters and sons to them were given, To cheer their years like sunbeams bright, And many a grandchild laughs with joy.

And greets his coming with great delight, He walks with us, a form well loved, He wears his years with an easy grace, He stretches a helping hand to all.

He meets tonight on his birthday eve, To wish him long and many years, Wealth and cheer and sunny days, Lack of sorrow, death and tears.

May his years be many upon the earth, May he hear at the close the Saviour say, "He hath builded better than he knew."

WEST PARIS.

Easter Sunday.

Easter Sunday was not bright and pleasant as the "Day of Promise" is expected or wished to be. But instead a drizzly rain kept up all day long; consequently many were kept at home from the church services, and no doubt some were disappointed not to be able to appear in their new spring rigs and Easter bonnets. Also many of the children who were going to take part in the Easter exercises were unable to come.

The service at the Baptist church consisted of an illustrated sermon by the pastor, an Easter anthem, hymns and another chorus piece by the young people and one exercise with music entitled, "Fair Lilies," by eight children, each wearing an Easter lily made and presented by Mrs. F. L. Wyman. The church was decorated with potted plants, a glass dish of narcissus bulbs in fragrant bloom and a cut bouquet of Easter lilies and pinkies from the pastor's florist friends in New York.

The Universalists had communion service and their Easter concert for the morning services, which consisted of readings by Miss Carter, Mrs. Leona Bidlon, Harold Perlman and Earle Bacon, exercises and choruses by the children and the choir, which were all very fine and interesting. There were quite a lot of potted plants and two potted Easter lilies. There were no evening services at either of the above mentioned churches.

The Methodists gave an Easter concert in the evening, which was very fine and impressive, consisting of readings by Ethel and Grace Brock, recitations and exercises by the children and young people, and a solo by Mrs. J. E. Brock. Three little tots hardly old enough to speak plainly—Mary Elizabeth Patch, Ruth Wilkinson and Wendall Ring—were very sweet and cunning. The church was decorated with potted plants and purple and white crepe paper.

The Baptist people gave up the evening service to attend the Methodist concert.

The Universalists also omitted their evening service, more especially to attend the O. P. Russell anniversary, but some attended the concert.

The I. O. O. F. celebrated their 79th anniversary in Odd Fellows' Hall, last Sunday evening. Rev. D. A. Ball gave the anniversary address and the Universalist choir furnished the music. The history of the Lodge was given by E. D. Curtis and Mr. Ball.
